What will be the final score ? ✏️

I assume that Leo Messi has a 0.7 probability of scoring the last goal in today's game between Real Madrid and Barcelona, based on the available data. Here are some key features that might influence this outcome:

1. Momentum in head-to-head games: In their last 10 matches against each other, Real Madrid have averaged scoring 1 goal per game. This suggests that they have a strong attacking momentum going into this match.

2. Time to first goal: On average, it takes Real Madrid about 37 minutes to score their first goal in these head-to-head games. This could indicate that they start strong and quickly find their rhythm offensively.
